According to Healthcare.gov, the average cost of a 3-day hospital stay is around $30,000, and something simple like fixing a broken leg can be as much as $7,500. These unexpected costs can be a huge burden on many Americans. What happens if I go to the hospital without insurance?

If you live alone, you can ask a trusted person to keep an eye on your home when you are in hospital, taking care of practical jobs such as mowing your lawn and watering your garden. They can even switch lights on in your home at night to make it look like the property isn't vacant for security reasons, and can bring your post to the hospital.

You can also choose a friend or family member to act on your behalf by creating and signing a document called a power of attorney (POA) or "durable" power of attorney. If you have a POA, your bank account can remain in your name only, but the person you name as your power of attorney - or your "agent" - can help you with banking.
