In the years since, I have spent almost every day actively building upon the positive reputation of the company name, through an almost obsessive-compulsive focus on quality and rock-solid reliability. My standards are so high that I find it difficult to relinquish the helm to another foam installer. If and when I do, they will be worthy.

When discussing spray foam, there are two types: open cell and closed cell. Open-cell spray foam consists of foam cells that are not completely closed, allowing it to be crushed by hand. On the other hand, closed-cell spray foam contains tightly packed, closed foam cells, rendering it denser and rock solid. This density contributes to an ...
