In areas with more sun and/or higher electricity rates, traditional solar companies charge more... even though their costs are the same. Abusive sales strategies price as high as they possibly can while still saving customers 10-15%, but people are way overpaying for solar. At Project Solar, we believe in flat pricing.

Claims of "free" solar panels: If any financing company you use advertises solar loans as "free solar panels", this is a major red flag. There is no such thing as free solar panels. This is a common sales tactic to lure in customers with no upfront costs. One thing is for sure: you will have to pay for solar one way or another.

In practice: Eva is paid a base rate of $1,000 per closed deal. She sells a 6kW system for $19,500, qualifying for a 125% base rate multiplier, earning $1,250 total for the job. Takeaways: This payment arrangement offers a nice alternative to encourage profitable selling, especially if you want to keep your profit margins a secret. Slight differences in commission ...
